MEET THE VIKINGS

The men and women of the Viking age may have a reputation for being merciless plunderers and pillagers, but Viking culture is much more diverse. They were curious explorers, resourceful sailors and tradespeople, creative cooks, carpenters, weavers, jewellers, farmers, fishermen, storytellers and much more. The word 'Viking' was mainly used to refer to expeditions. And though no signs of horned helmets have emerged from archaeological digs, who knows if Vikings experimented with different fashion styles to show off status, clan colours, or simply just for fun! Viking-age men and women enjoyed equal rights in many respects, from participating in overseas voyages and tending to the home and different occupations, to local council representations, marital rights and property ownership.

COMMUNITY

Viking communities were typically ruled by 'Jarls' (wealthy authoritative figures), with 'Karls' representing the 'working class', and 'Thralls' or slaves. Though laws were not specifically written down, communities would pass on their customs and culture verbally and through rituals and practices. They assembled regularly to vote on important issues, settle disputes and catch up on the news of the land. Words, both spoken and in rune symbols, in particular, were believed to have a powerful effect, good or bad, on everything in the physical world. The word rune, from the Old Norse 'rún' or 'rúna', means a whisper, a secret, or advice, and unkind or damning words towards the gods or your fellow humans were believed to cause devastating consequences.

STYLE

Vikings were creative problem-solvers who enjoyed cooking delicious meals and creating beautiful arts and crafts, elaborate hairstyles and clothes. Both men and women shampooed their hair with a potent lye-based soap that lightened their hair, allowing even brunettes to achieve the signature blond Viking locks. Whether out of vanity or practicality, it was an effective way to keep lice at bay!

CAREERS

Every skill was important to a community's status, health and wealth. Farming, fishing, hunting and preserving food for the cold seasons were vital to survival. Fish, game and produce were dried, salted, pickled, smoked and infused with herbs. Blacksmiths forged weapons for voyages or battle, but also essential tools, kitchenware and jewellery. Weavers, glass bead makers, woodturners, carpenters and potters each made valuable and decorative objects for everyday use and goods to trade on commercial expeditions. In return (or as part of their plunder), Vikings would bring back precious metal jewellery or clothes.

EXPEDITIONS AND TRAVELS

Viking longships were built as warships and must have been a terrifying sight as they approached new shores. But trade ships were just as commonly seen in the Nordic Region, and while not quite as fast as the longships, some of the largest trade ships could hold up to 60 tons of cargo. Evidence of Viking trade has been found in regions as far away as the Eastern shores of the US, Eastern Europe and Russia. A few infamous Vikings even carved 'graffiti' runes in prominent places on their expeditions to Turkey and Greece. Closer to home, they enjoyed skiing, both as a means to get around, go hunting – and just for fun!

Florian "Brickhammer"

MEET THE FAN DESIGNER

Florian (aka BrickHammer in the LEGO® Ideas community) is a German native with a master's degree in history, English literature and political science. He is a talented and popular contributor to the LEGO Ideas community, with eight submissions reaching 10,000+ supporters so far! Florian actually studied the Norman conquest of 1066 and its influence on Anglo-Saxon society as the main topic for one of his final exams at university:

Florian's original Viking Village submissions.

Can you spot features from each in the final model?

'Even though this set does not aspire to depict a realistic Viking Village (for one, I included the 100% fictive horns on the helmets), the inspiration for the project was a combination of my interest in Viking history and nostalgia for a classic 1990s LEGO Vikings set (7018 Viking Ship Challenges the Midgard Serpent). My first LEGO Ideas Viking Village project reached 10,000 votes in 2020 but didn't make it through the final approval rounds. In 2022, I submitted an updated, more evolved version which happened to reach 10,000 votes just weeks before the first version was announced as the winner of the Target™ x LEGO Ideas contest. Eventually, we included features from both of my submissions, so you could say you get two 10K models in one! We refined the details, like the stone staircase, the cave, the golden roof decorations and – my favourite – the rope bridge. The classic LEGO rope bridge mould is one of my all-time favourite pieces but it's no longer in production, so we created a brick-built version. In my free time, I train Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu, so we also hid a tiny martial arts Easter egg, too. Thank you, to each and every supporter who has voted for my submissions on LEGO Ideas, especially in the Target™ x LEGO Ideas contest!'

MEET THE LEGO® DESIGNERS

'Vikings have always sparked our imagination, and Florian did a fabulous job capturing the Viking aesthetic. We altered the model composition, so it offers a great front view, with lots of interesting details to discover on every side. The structure of the chieftain's longhouse is based on actual Viking timber architecture – a fire pit provides heat and a place to cook, and the decorated tile with wood carvings adds the perfect finishing touch. You can use the bellows to stoke the forge fire, and the blacksmith has a paintbrush ready to decorate her new shield. There is even a pickaxe, which can be used to mine iron from the cave under the tower. And keen LEGO® fans may notice the significance of the village banners' colours. This was absolutely a passion project for Florian, Johanna and me. We hope you enjoy the final result!'

–Isaac Snyder, LEGO® Ideas Model Designer

Isaac Snyder

Johanna Wurm Jensen

'Both of Florian's models really express how I imagined Vikings when I was a child. Strong, adventurous and a bit magical! I always felt empowered by this world, so I wanted the minifigure characters to exude this feeling. Although not all the graphics in the final model are historically faithful, they are all heavily inspired by the Viking culture. We wanted the model to inspire storytelling and find a nice balance between history and fiction. The motifs on the shields are inspired by animal pairs from Viking mythology, and I especially love how the chieftain's shield turned out with the wolves. In LEGO Ideas, the fan designer is always the star of the model, so we included a small Easter egg for "BrickHammer" in the blacksmith's hut. See if you can find his runic initials!'

- The diagram illustrates the assembly of a grey plastic component, likely a LEGO Technic part, through seven numbered steps:

  - Step 1: A single grey 2x3 brick is shown.
  - Step 2: The brick is oriented with its top surface facing forward.
  - Step 3: The brick is shown from a side-on perspective.
  - Step 4: The brick is shown from a front-on perspective, with a red arrow pointing to a slot on the left side.
  - Step 5: The brick is shown attached to a grey L-shaped Technic connector, with a red box highlighting the connection point.
  - Step 6: The assembly is shown from a side-on perspective, with a red box highlighting the connection point between the brick and the connector.
  - Step 7: The final assembled part is shown from a front-on perspective, featuring the grey 2x3 brick attached to the L-shaped connector.
